Introduction

You may have heard some of the hype about “fat-flush water.” But how exactly does water flush fat out of your system? Read this guide to learn all about it plus get some fantastic infused-water recipes.

EATING FOR HEALTH, VIBRANCE AND BEAUTY

Using water to flush fat

Clearly, water is not some kind of magic diet supplement. Your body needs enough water every day to keep hydrated and cleanse itself of unwanted materials. Fat deposits that form on the body can be tough to break down and eliminate, but proper nutrition and exercise can help greatly with this.

Fat is broken down when the body uses its fat deposits to produce energy and the triglycerides in the fat cells are removed. These are broken down into fatty acids and glycerols and are then absorbed into your muscle tissue and internal organs, where they are then broken down even further through various chemical processes. If the products left over from these chemical processes are not used by the body as energy, they are then considered waste products and need to be removed from the body. This is where the role of water comes in.

The role of water in health

Water is the vehicle used to remove these waste products from the body. The leftover materials from the fat breakdown are then filtered out of your organs by the water that you drink. The water carries the waste to your bladder where it is then expelled from your body through your urine. Our bodies truly are amazing! It is important to drink enough water each day to keep you hydrated and facilitate the breakdown and elimination of fat cells. Many sources claim that you should be consuming around 8 glasses of water per day, but this number can vary depending on your size, how often you are exercising, how much fresh product you eat, and even how hot it is outside. Try to keep drinking water consistently throughout the day and consider water before soda, fruit juices, or other sugary drinks, as these can actually dehydrate your body even more. Often a lack of energy and even headaches throughout the day are simply symptoms of mild dehydration. It is a good idea to make a conscious effort to drink more water. A little extra is definitely better than not enough!

How fat-flush water works

Each ingredient in the Fat-Flush Water recipe serves a purpose. The tangerine increases your sensitivity to insulin, stabilizes blood sugar, and increases fat burned during exercise because of the vitamin C. (Learn more at: <http://rawforbeauty.com/blog/fat-flush-water.html#sthash.uB4BsHaw.dpuf>)

The grapefruit increases metabolic energy, burns fat, and boosts energy.

The cucumber helps you to feel more full and acts as a natural diuretic, which means less bloating and water retention.

The mint leaves aid in digestion.

Please be advised that drinking water or infused water is unlikely to burn fat on its own. This is considered a fat flush, meaning that you will still need to do the exercise that is required to break down the fat so that it can then be eliminated by the body. Proper nutrition also plays a huge role. It's not about restricting calories but making sure to get enough calories for your body from healthy, lean, whole foods. At the very least, this tasty water recipe will give you some added nutrients throughout the day, and help to ensure that you are drinking enough.

Morning Miracle

Drink this first thing in the morning to keep your body flushing toxins all day.

Lemon helps to release toxins from your body and ginger is an anti-inflammatory that stimulates circulation to help the body clear toxins.

Ingredients

3 tablespoons lemon juice

2 tablespoons fresh ginger root, grated

Place all ingredients in a pitcher with 2 liters (64 oz) purified water. Stir and then refrigerate overnight. Drink throughout the next day.

Master Cleanse Detox Water

The Master Cleanse was specially designed to help flush fat and toxins from your body. I do not recommend completing the entire master cleanse, but I do believe the drink itself has powerful detoxifying properties.

Ingredients

2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice from room-temperature lemon

2 tablespoons organic maple syrup

1/10 teaspoon cayenne pepper or to taste (as much as you can stand)

8 ounces of water

Mix the ingredients in a tall glass and drink within 5 to 10 minutes. Do not make in advance and store—it gets too spicy.
